YOUTH INFORMATION

What is CCS?

CCS is a recovery focused behavioral health program for children and adolescents with mental illness, substance use disorders, and/or severe emotional disturbance.

- Youth establish plans to accomplish their goal.
- With help from their team, services are agreed upon.
- Family and other supports determined by the youth are involved.
- CCS is a program where most services are provided in the youth's home and local community.
- Services are provided at no cost to participants.

Program Services

Services are determined through assessment and individualized service planning.

Services Plans may include:

- Communication and interpersonal skills training
- Diagnostic evaluations and specialized assessments
- Medication management
- Physical health education, support and monitoring
- Social development and behavior modeling
- Individual and family therapy; in the home, at school, or the CCS office
- Recovery education and illness management
- Substance abuse treatment
- Crisis prevention and management
- Education, training, and support for family members
- Support for an attainment of educational goals
- Mentoring
- Coordination with current providers and therapists

CCS VISION

CCS is a flexible way of providing support that is decided and agreed to by the youth and their family/guardians.

CCS services support the youth living their best life in areas such as health, education, relationships, and social activities.

CCS promotes meaningful participation of participants with family/guardians and chosen support systems.

CCS provides participants the skills to take better control of their lives as they develop into adults.

CCS helps identify service resources that build skills to allow youth to take responsibility for their decisions and actions that meet the needs of participants and their families.
